PHYSICAL DEMANDS AND WORK ENVIRONMENT

While performing the duties of this job, the Child Welfare Worker will typically be in a home or office setting with regular meetings with children, families and other professionals. The Child Welfare Worker is frequently required to operate a computer, file and retrieve written documents, and work overtime when required or during emergency situations.

The physical demands include, but are not limited to, standing, sitting, walking, lifting, carrying, reaching, handling, kneeling, crouching and bending. The Child Welfare Worker will be required to travel to meetings and home visits within the district.

The Child Welfare Worker must be able to multi-task within a fast-paced, high-volume and demanding environment. The Child Welfare Worker absorbs and interprets information from multiple parties on a regular basis and is required to listen and reconcile multiple points of view, which can be mentally challenging. As a result, this position is more emotionally challenging than physically challenging. There will be extended periods of sitting required when performing administrative tasks and while attending meetings.

Non-physical demands include a work environment where the noise level is usually moderate to high. The nature of the position may expose the Child Welfare Worker to high levels of tension when dealing with issues. The level of tension is usually moderate, with high levels of tension occurring occasionally.

The Child Welfare Worker may be exposed to potentially hazardous environments including driving conditions and volatile situations during home visits.

Given the traditional practices of Indigenous people, from time to time exposure to smoke from the burning of sacred medicines; tobacco, sweet grass, sage or cedar, may occur.

TECHNOLOGY & EQUIPMENT

Computer, photocopier, telephone, fax machine and cell phone.
